The healthcare focus of your interests would be highly valuable in this position, allowing you to apply your knowledge to a specific industry. While the other two roles, AI Data & Prompt Engineering [Link] and Generative AI Development [Link], are within the AI field, they are less suited to your expressed preferences and personality. They require a more introspective and detail-oriented approach than your extroverted nature suggests you would thrive in. However, if you are interested in developing your skills in these areas, they could be considered for future career progression.
